

03116 – Communication Access Real-time Transcription (CART)Pricing & Ordering Instructions

This Master Contract is for Communication Access Real-Time Transcription (CART) Services. The National Court Reporters Association (NCRA) describes CART services as “the instant translation of the spoken word into English text using a stenotype machine, notebook computer and real-time software.” The text produced by the CART service can be displayed on an individual’s computer monitor, projected onto a screen, combined with a video presentation to appear as captions, or otherwise made available using other transmission and display systems. This Master Contract is constructed with five (5) categories:

- Local CART – The real-time conversion of spoken word into written text, displayed on a screen for the audience, done on-site while communication is taking place.
- Remote CART – The real-time conversion of communications into written text, displayed on a screen for the audience, done remotely with use of audio/video relay equipment.
- Real-Time (Open) Captioning – The real-time placement of text upon a live stream, relaying what is being communicated.
- Post-Webinar (Closed) Captioning – The placement of written text relaying what was being communicated on a previously recorded Webinar or other presentation typically saved on a media file.
- Post-Production (Closed) Captioning – The placement of written text conveying what was being communicated on a previously recorded presentation saved on a DVD or CD.
